Penn, 27 June 1980

Dear Dr Redhead,

I wish to thank you for your great friendliness and your hospitality. And also for having read some of my writings on Quantum Theory which, as you probably know, have met, so far as they were at all considered, mainly with rejection. Not that I have any reason to complain that my stuff has not been sufficiently appreciated. On the contrary, I feel that I have been honoured far beyond deserts. But as to Quantum Mechanics, such arguments as proposed in Appendix *XI of my L.Sc.D. have, it seems, not been read, and to my knowledge, never been discussed. I therefore was very happy to see that you have read them. I was most impressed by your immense learning in this field: I am merely an amateur, in this field as in others, and I have not followed the literature, with very few exceptions. And I have not spoken to any knowledgable physicist for years and years. In fact, I did not know how to approach them. So these two visits to Chelsea were a revelation. Many thanks again. Yours Karl Popper.